Henry County veterans were honored Monday at Henry County High School. The Henry County's Air Force JROTC served veterans breakfast and the Henry County High School Choir sang during the ceremony. Many students and residents attended to thank veterans for their sacrifice and service to the country. James A. Goodloe, above, stands as he is recognized for his service in the Army from 1960-1962. Nepotism and Budget prove contentious at special meeting

BY BRAD BOWMAN

Henry County Fiscal Court's special meeting last week depicted the divide between fiscal court and the sheriff's regarding budget protocol, personnel policy and the issue of nepotism. Henry County Sheriff Danny Cravens requested a part-time salary cap adjustment due to overages from training his son Matthew Cravens for court security.

An Eminence Police officer went shopping with his family and received a level of customer service he didn't expect. On Thursday, Nov. 7, Lt. O.C. Jones, of the Eminence Police Department, accompanied his wife and 4-month old daughter to the Walmart in La Grange to get pictures developed. While the family shopped, according to a La Grange Police Department report, Charles A. Jackson II and a juvenile, both Henry County residents, approached Jones' family. "My wife and I were trying to do some shopping and ran into one of the boys I've arrested in the past and he wanted to confront me in front of my

State audit asks Sheriff's Office to repay $670 to calendar account

BY BRAD BOWMAN
news@hclocal.com

In its annual review of the Henry County Sheriff's Department, the state auditor's office declared $670 in disbursements to be inappropriate and that they must be repaid. According to a press release from State Auditor Adam Edelen, the audit found $670 dollars spent in Henry County Sheriff Danny Craven's 2012 financial statement that did not follow an acceptable accounting principle format. The auditor's comment included the opinion that money spent on items, like a deputy's $200 wedding gift, were not, "...reasonable or necessary as a function of the Sheriff's Office." Cravens said the ruling of audits and the auditor's opinion changes year to year. Cravens said money raised from the sheriff's office calendar isn't taxpayer money, and the previous year's auditor said the money could be spent as the office saw fit. "I wish they would just set the regulations and I would stick to them," Cravens said. "What you can do with revenue not generated from taxpayer money changes with each auditor's opinion year to year." Stephanie Hoelscher, communications director for Auditor of Public Accounts Adam Edelen, said the report isn't a huge crisis.

"We emphasize that every audit stands on its own. Audits are snapshots, we couldn't possibly look at every transaction and can't look at what was said in the past," Hoelscher said. "This isn't a huge crisis. The sheriff agreed to our response sometimes this audits they are looked at as serious wrongdoing but they are supposed to be used as

To our veterans: Thank you!

Memorial Day is the day we honor those who gave the ultimate sacrifice. Those, who paid for our freedom with their lives. On Veterans Day, we honor those courageous men and women, willing to give all, who have stepped up when called, who have served our nation, protected our freedom, and returned home to their families, as Ronald Reagan said, “Champions of a noble cause.”

My family, like yours, has those who served our nation in times of war, as well as during peace time. Men I admire and respect, like my brother Kevin, who served in the Air Force during Desert Storm. My brothers-in-law

Allen and Chris served as a Marine and a sailor respectively. My Uncle Russ served in the Army during Vietnam and my dad served in the Army during World War II.

For his service, my dad was awarded two Bronze Stars for meritorious achievement in ground operations against the enemy, but he would never discuss it. After his death, several years ago, one of his boyhood friends shared with me some stories of the battles in the Pacific Theater that dad had shared with him, just after he had returned home.

I have made it a rule that when I meet a veteran, I thank them for their service.

Because of my profession, I get the high honor, from time to time, to assist veterans in a difficult time in their life. That is how I met the veteran, who lives here in Henry County, who was just a day out from Pearl Harbor, on that fateful day, Dec. 7, 1941.

There is the gentleman, who just so happened, to serve in the Pacific Theater during WWII at the same time my dad did. He shared stories with me as if he was talking to my dad, reliving those horrific memories of landing on the beaches of the Philippine Islands, the gun battles he fought, and the buddies he watched lose their lives. Wondering why he made it home, when they did not. Later, after he passed away his wife would tell me that he had never shared those stories before, that he looked forward to my visits, and seemed to be more at peace when he passed away.

John F. Kennedy said, “As we express our gratitude, we must never forget that the highest appreciation is not to utter words, but to live by them.”

While Veterans Day was Monday, we should honor veterans, those champions, heroes, all who stood up to defend this nation, willing to give all, to fight against tyranny and evil every day.

To you veterans reading this, we owe you a debt we can never repay.

Thank you!

Reduction of road fatalities remains in our hands

One of the more persistent challenges facing our country is finding ways to reduce the number of people killed or injured in a traffic accident.

In one sense, we have come a long way. Four decades ago, for example, the number of highway fatalities regularly topped 50,000 a year, but the figures for 2011 were the lowest the United States has seen since 1949, a testament to tougher laws, safer roads, more focused enforcement and better technology in the cars and trucks we drive.

A sizeable portion of that progress came in just the six years before 2011, when the country's, and Kentucky's, totals declined by a fourth.

That trend, unfortunately, began to turn the other way last year,

Rick Rand
State Representative

although it looks like 2013 will put us back on track. According to the Kentucky State Police, preliminary estimates through the first 10 months of this year show a 12 percent decline in fatalities when compared to the same period in 2012.

Overall, KSP reported there were nearly 148,000 traffic accidents last year involving almost 207,000 drivers. Most of the accidents — about two-thirds — resulted only in property damage.

When looking at just the 706 fatalities, males outnumbered females almost two to one. Most of the victims were also relatively young, with nearly 60 percent under the age of 44.

October had the most traffic accidents last year, but May had the most fatalities. Among the days of the week, Saturday and Sunday nearly tied as being the most deadly, while Monday had the lowest totals of the seven.

As for the human factors behind all traffic accidents, inattention, over-correcting, substance abuse and speeding were understandably among the chief causes. While one of the smaller factors, improper use of cell phones was nonetheless responsible for 10 fatalities, just two less than falling asleep at the wheel.

Teenage drivers, who make up about 7 percent of all licensed drivers in Kentucky, were involved in 16 percent of all collisions last year and 10 percent of the state's fatalities. There has at least been a positive downward trend in these categories over the last few years.

In other good news, the number of alcohol-related accidents has continued its generally steady decline over the last half-dozen years, and seatbelt usage continues to increase across Kentucky. The 2008 rate of 73 percent moved to 84 percent last year.

At the other end of the spectrum, safety equipment remains mostly absent in motorcycle and ATV deaths. Of the 98 motorcyclists killed last year, 61 were not wearing a helmet, and for ATV users, only one of the 16 fatalities wore one.

Over the years, the General Assembly has taken several steps to make our roads safer. That includes lengthening the time it takes for new teenage drivers to get their license; lowering the legal limits for DUI; and stopping texting while driving. Our law enforcement has also ramped up its patrols, thanks in part to such campaigns as ‘Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over’ and ‘Click It or Ticket.’ According to a recent legislative study, KSP — and its Division of Commercial Vehicle Enforcement — issued nearly 700,000 traffic citations alone between 2009 and 2012.

In the not-too-distant future, we may all be much safer as passengers in self-driving cars, but until then, the responsibility to keep our roads safe remains in our hands. As we approach the holidays and the winter weather that follows, I encourage you to drive a little slower and avoid any distractions. As another popular driving campaign puts it, it can wait.

If you would like to contact me about this or any other issue, you can reach me by writing to Room 366B, Capitol Annex, 702 Capitol Avenue, Frankfort, KY 40601. You can also leave a message for me or for any legislator at 800-372-7181. For those with a hearing impairment, the number is 800-896-0305.

I hope to hear from you soon.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A letter of thanks

The players, parents and coaches of the Eminence Warriors' youth football teams would like to thank those who supported our program this year. Our sponsors include Citizens Deposit Bank, Steel Technologies, Perry's Hardware, Scriber's Station on Elm, Eminence Speaker, Affordable Signs & Apparel, Prewitt's, John Logan Brent, Lewis and Terri Laroche, and Wayne and Lou Gunnell. Your financial support provided the necessary equipment, uniforms and materials needed to allow these kids the opportunity to play football.

I appreciate the coaches that dedicated the time, effort and guidance to build a successful program. Those coaches are Emmanuel Saunders, Craig Gnagie, Kumar Rashad, Eric Metten, Kurtis Kinderman and our team mom, Elisia Gnagie. Without their willingness to volunteer, this program would not exist.

I would also like to thank the Eminence Independent School for allowing our teams to utilize the athletic facilities for practice. It not only allows for the kids to be able to practice close to home, but also allows them to connect with the older players on the school teams.

Our appreciation also goes out to the Mike Sturgeon, Mike Cole, Jason and Libby Warner, Kelly Docktor, Larry Bailey and Jason Spencer for all the time that they dedicated to making this league successful.

Last, but not least, I would like to thank the parents for allowing their children to play football and giving us the honor of coaching them. We were blessed with a great group of kids that expressed the desire to learn the game and play together as a team.

Thanks for a great season!

family," Jones said. "I told him, 'You need to go on Chucky, leave me alone and cool out. I'm here with my family and you guys need to go on and leave us alone.'"

Jones said he calmly walked away from his family into another aisle, wanting to put some distance between Jackson, the juvenile and his family.

According to the report from Officer David Stratton of the La Grange Police Department, as well as Jones' personal account, the juvenile got in front of Jones and took a picture of him with his phone. Jackson approached Jones from behind and started shouting.

"The older boy ran behind me and started making an accusation that I had hit the younger one," Jones said. "I think they were trying to coach me into a violent act. One of the customer service managers tried to escort them out the door. They (the employee) didn't know I was an officer."

According to Jones, Jackson and the juvenile then went to the Eminence Police Department and when they found they would have to wait until the morning to file a report, they returned to La Grange.

Stratton was dispatched to Walmart after the juvenile accompanying Jackson reported that an off-duty EPD officer had started yelling and grabbed him. The juvenile stated that Jones harassed his family and he wanted something done about it.

Stratton asked Whitney Lyell, a Walmart asset protection associate, to show him the camera footage of the incident. Upon reviewing the video, Stratton wrote that, "it showed the (juvenile) go up to Eminence Officer, O.C. Jones, and put his phone in his face and take a picture... Jackson ran up behind Jones and it looked like a verbal altercation took place."

Stratton stated that at no time during the incident did Jones touch either of the males during the confrontation.

Stratton charged the juvenile with falsely reporting an incident and 2nd degree disorderly conduct. When the juvenile was placed in custody, Jackson started cursing Stratton according to his report. Stratton charged Jackson with 2nd degree disorderly conduct.

"It goes to show policemen get harassed too. It doesn't happen very often but this is one of those incidents," Jones said. "It's a shame people can't just go shop. (Police officers) see people we've dealt with all the time. Sometimes they apologize for what they've done and we try to give them advice and you have to worry 1 percent that want to retaliate."

MELISSA BLANKENSHIP/LOCAL

Members of the most recent Henry County Leadership class were honored during a graduation ceremony Thursday night. Each class must choose a project to complete, and this year's class has divided in half to undertake two projects. One is still in the development stage and the second originates from the members of the group with an interest in agriculture. Those members have decided to create a young farmers organization for the county called Henry County Ag Connection. For more information, call Steve Moore at (502) 845-2811. Pictured front row, from left to right are: Michael Douglas, Curtis Coombs, Roby Foree, David Combs and LeAnne Yancey. Back row: Daniel Wright, Ryan Roberts, Zac Banta, Jeff Miniard, Stephen Davie and Seth Bryant. Not pictured is Holly Sprabary.

duty. Cravens argued that given the state qualifications, a six-month process for a part-time job the position didn't attract many candidates and the investment in his son's training would make an ideal fit.

"I need part-time people and I can't do like EMS and just pull them out of a hat," Cravens said. "I have to go through a six-month process to get them qualified no matter whether it is my son or who it is, and no one wants a part-time job that may just work one or two days a week and go through the process that is set by state standards. At the time, I had looked for other people, talked to other people and no one was interested. I talked to my son about it because he is self-employed. We went through that process with him and got him trained. We let him fill in and get court experience and fill in those gaps and it did put us over."

Cravens explained that his son took military leave at the same time then Sheriff Deputy Dustin Hamilton left the force and he was short handed with no one to cover the shifts that would prevent other deputies from getting overtime.

"It wasn't any mismanagement. It wasn't anything to that nature," Cravens said. "If Dustin (Hamilton) hadn't left we wouldn't have been over. Well, we still could've been over, but it wouldn't have been as big of a deal."

Henry County Judge-Executive John Logan Brent asked Cravens if he looked throughout the year to see where he was at — such as starting halfway through the Sheriff's Office budgeted year. Cravens said he will ask Sheriff's Office manager Deeanne West where the office's budget and hours were at, but sometimes extended court hours make it beyond his control.

"Do you have any idea where you were June 30 of this year whether you were ahead or behind," Brent asked. "You were about $7,000 ahead. Halfway through the year, you were $7,000 ahead. In other words, you spent $7,000 for half a year, which would be a red light to say, 'I'm heading down a dangerous road here.' And that was before Dustin left you."

Brent said he had pulled the Sheriff's Office numbers to ascertain where the office was halfway through the year. Cravens said he was unaware of the overage and relied on West to keep him abreast of the office's spending.

"At the end of June, you hadn't even had the fair yet and you are going into tax time," Brent said.

"I'm just trying to provide more service to the community with what we got," Cravens said. "That's what the public elected me to do and I would think I would have support from fiscal court because it's your family and friends and you all that are getting the same service. If you all are willing to give up that service and not have any law enforcement from the Sheriff's Office out there that's another thing. The constitutional law says that Sheriff's Office has to provide some of these services."

Cravens said he didn't feel like he had any support or cooperation from the fiscal court without an argument. Magistrate Nick Hawkins didn't think that was exactly true.

"I think that we have more than cooperated with the Sheriff's Office," Hawkins said. "We have amended his budget, we have adjusted his salary cap numerous times and we are here recommending the committee to do it again. I think Danny does a good job and we were elected as a body to manage the county's finances and sometimes when we work together we are not always going to agree."

The motion passed and $5,500 was taken from the sheriff's escrow account and was added to the Sheriff's Office budget for part-time labor.

But the other contentious subject matter involved nepotism — the sheriff's position of his hiring his own son and the sheriff as a constitutional officer having his own personnel policy.

"I am in full agreement that a constitutional officer doesn't have to use our personnel policy," Brent said. "According to what I've been told they have to go by our ethics ordinance."

Brent argued that as judge-executive he couldn't be held accountable for the Sheriff's Office payroll if the sheriff had his own personnel policy. Hawkins interjected that he had an attorney's opinion regarding nepotism when Cravens mentioned hiring his son.

"The sheriff can have his own personnel policy. The legal counsel said that the ethics ordinance applies to all constitutional officers," Hawkins said. "So I feel the right thing to do is amend our ethics policy to include a clause on nepotism."

Hawkins proposed that no spouse, child, stepchild, parent, sibling, grandparent, grandchild, or in-law of a county office may not be employed or appointed to any paid full-time position.

Henry County Attorney Virginia Harrod stated she had a letter to the state attorney general about the ethics ordinance.

"There is a specific KRS on ethics codes," Harrod said. "In 1999, we amended an ethics ordinance from 1994 that stated you couldn't hire family under (former Henry County Judge-Executive) Tommy Bryant."

Harrod explained that the original KRS from 1994 had to be adopted by county governments or they would lose funding from the state and she was still waiting on a ruling from the attorney general.

Cravens disputed that he was governed by another set of Kentucky Revised Statutes specific to sheriffs. KRS 70.030 states that, "...the sheriff may appoint his or her own deputies and may revoke the appointment at his or her pleasure except where that revocation is prohibited."

"I'm not going to discriminate against my son if he is qualified for the job," Cravens said. "I go by the law of the land. It states that, '...No sheriff whose county has adopted a deputy sheriff merit board (which Henry County doesn't) shall appoint a deputy who is a member of the immediate family of the sheriff.'"

Henry County Fiscal Court will consider a second reading and adoption to the proposed ethics amendment 5:30 p.m., Wednesday.

AUDIT

tools and to help them go forward."

Hoelscher admitted that public officials and the auditors both seek clarifications in the way funds get spent and under what regulations spending must abide by.

"In the case of the calendars, we would view that as raising money and it has to be (used) for a public purpose," Hoelscher said. "I know it is a source of frustration for city officials that have had multiple years and audits where we may or may not have said it was okay how things were reported, but every year's audit stands on its own. These are snapshots, because we didn't put something in an audit one year doesn't necessarily means it is okay. We evaluate levels of risk."

The audit listed six items that didn't meet auditor's guidelines: payment to fiscal court for Christmas dinner $213; deputy wedding gift $200; Sheriff's Office advertisement on football field $100; a gift basket for a sheriff's convention $50; Halloween candy $92; refreshments for election night $15.

Some of the expenditures were used as a way to connect to the community in a good light, Cravens said.

"The wedding gift should've never been done. We usually take up collections around the office for someone and why we did that — my mind must've been in a million other places," Cravens said. "The advertisement on the field wasn't anything political. It didn't have my name on it anywhere. It just shows the office supports local sports and the Halloween candy, the county Christmas dinner that was all done for the community no single person benefited from that."

The audit quoted the 1958 court ruling in Funk v. Milliken stating that, "...Kentucky's highest court ruled that county fee officials' expenditures of public funds will be allowed only if they are necessary, adequately documented, reasonable in amount, beneficial to the public and not primarily personal in nature."

The auditor recommended the sheriff pay $670 back to the calendar account from personal funds.

"I won't argue about it. You have to pay it back," Cravens said. "I wish they would just set regulations I can follow instead of ruling differently every year on what you can or can't do."

Berry accepts Richard C. Holbrooke Distinguished Achievement Award

BY BRAD BOWMAN
news@hclocal.com

Wendell Berry was honored as the 2013 winner of the Richard C. Holbrooke Distinguished Achievement Award as part of the Dayton Literary Peace Prize Sunday, Nov. 9.

Berry joins other distinguished writers like Elie Wiesel, who wrote about his experience in German concentration camps, Barbara Kingsolver and Studs Terkel.

"In a time that spends so many words and dollars upon conflict, it is encouraging to be noticed for having said a few words in favor of peace," Berry said during his acceptance speech.

"Violence against our world and our fellow beings finally cannot be disassociated from the violence of untruth. How can we continue to insist that our land destroying, water and air polluting agriculture is the only way to feed the world? Moreover, why should we continue to believe that our government is uniquely to be trusted with our weapons of mass destruction."

Berry paralleled the violence of war with the violence of an industrial society to the land and environment. Irresponsible land use that caused soil erosion is no different than coal companies that use mountain top removal as an aggressive means to mine resources, according to Berry.

Violence in our present society also extends to our freedom and Berry drew the line from an irresponsible culture of violence that eventually attacked it's freedom under the guise of security.

"We speak of freedom, of our God-given freedom, of defending, using and destroying freedom as of something memorized in grade school and never thought of again," he said.

"We might as well be talking in our sleep. We have been so thoughtless and so careless of our freedom for so long that by now we cannot see that our assumed right to be limitlessly violent would finally bring us to violence against freedom that may destroy it and it will be extremely difficult to oppose."

"I am speaking of our present massive effort of so called national security, comprised of an immense force of secret police regulated by processes and persons equally secret and possessing a gigantic technology of surveillance also secret which it has used to intrude into the private communications of every citizen of our own country and evidently every citizen in the world who has the misfortune of a computer or telephone. And all of this with no hint of probable cause and without a sham or shadow of due process. "

The over-extended actions of national security were a legal insult to the constitution and personally to ourselves, Berry said. The public compromise in the name of national security seems dumbfounding.

"Almost as dismaying as this secretive and tyrannous security is the talk among people reputedly intelligent of the need to balance freedom and security. Balance is an unfortunate word here. For it raises two extremely perilous questions: Who is to load the scales and who is to position the fulcrum," Berry asked.

"In our customary glibness about freedom, are we now supposing that it is a substantial commodity some of which can be portioned off and exchanged for another commodity called security? But there can be no balance between freedom and secret police, freedom and universal suspicion, freedom and tyranny, there is only choice."

If Americans have courage, we will choose freedom, Berry said. And by choosing freedom we will use it.

"We will use it to oppose our government's frivolous and dangerous secrecy, which it imposes upon us under the claim of security, but really to hide its abusive power and its shame," Berry said. "Peace comes from freedom, real freedom. It comes from responsibility real acceptance of responsibility. Freedom is not simple. For it always is involved with responsibility. The relation between freedom and responsibility is not a balance to be expediently adjusted by governments or citizens who without both can have neither."

BASIC BIO

Music Director at Franklinton Baptist Church since April 2000
Life long resident of Louisville

Graduated from Bishop David High School.

Attended Kentucky Wesleyan College.

How did you get involved with music?

I am of that generation who listened to the Beatles. I badgered my family for a guitar, my dad brought home an arch top Sears guitar that he bought for probably $12. I was 13 then and around the same time I got involved in high school band and learned how to play with a group and read music. They assigned me as a drum major and part of the 10- to 12-piece pep band.

During high school I got involved in theater with a great director. I continued that at Wesleyan. I was writing a few songs and not doing a whole lot with it.

Then I got involved with a Baptist church in Louisville that a friend of mine went to and they were getting ready to do a dramatic reading. I wanted to get out of the church, but my friend said I was going to this. He volunteered me to do this since I had a theater background and they chose me to do the part even though I wasn't a member of the church. I started hanging around that church from then on. I wrote a script for them to do at a bicentennial. It was two one act plays with short transitional pieces. It was about the history of the United States, the founding of the country and how that merged with theology.

I got married right after that and moved to a different church where we developed a theatre group and we had five-minute shorts that we did during service or took to other churches. I called them a guerilla group because we hit hard and fast and moved on. We did a lot of humor. When you get people in your corner (with humor) then you can give them a message.

How do you approach the construction of your compositions?

There are ideas in everything. Somebody will say a phrase or do something that clicks.

I wanted to write a love song once. I wanted to write a different kind of love song about a fella who had lost his love and I wanted to say it in a different fashion. I wrote the first verse and then the second verse took a left turn. Instead of a typical love song it became a song about an old man losing the love of his life because his wife had Alzheimer's and how he reacted to that. When I finished that, I thought, 'Where did that come from?'

Writing may be an act of discovery, it can take a life of its own and you have to follow where it goes.

Some of the pieces I have written for church when I finished them, the great songs, I asked where they came from. I'm not a genius. I just had a pen in my hand at the right time. I have to say they were divinely inspired. It's like Guy Clarke said, if you know three chords and the truth you've got something.

What can you tell me about the composition you've written for Franklinton Baptist Church?

Without giving too much of it away, it is called 'From the Workshop to the Manger.' It takes place at Santa's workshop at North Pole. We find that Santa isn't very happy and he is getting depressed. There has been an increase in the naughty list and a decrease in the nice list. All letters to Santa are self-centered and selfish. The weather conditions around the world are bad with monsoons and Rudolph's nose is on the blink. There are a lot of things that are getting to Santa. The characters in the production try to lift his spirits and none that tend to work. The Naughty and Nice Department come in with a new improved report, the Research and Development Department have fixed Rudolph's nose, there are carolers outside trying to get everyone in the spirit and Santa feels like something is missing with all the pomp and circumstance.

The production has a flow to it without a break in action...no blackouts between scenes I wanted it to flow from start to finish. There will be Christmas songs in it that everyone recognizes like White Christmas, We Need a Little Christmas, etc. The opening song is mine and there is actually a rap song in it. Four of the characters work in different departments.

One is the department head for making toy cars, one for trains, one for planes and one for dolls and they perform the Christmas 'wrap' song. There is also a love song in it. Mrs. Claus sings a love song to Santa.

How has your interest in music affected your life?

It has done everything. It is my passion, my obsession. It has obviously led me to the point that I am a musical director at a church. It has been an outlet for my thoughts and it is my canvas on which I paint the different scenes of life. I will keep doing it until I die. I cannot imagine living without it. There was an incident at church where the pianist was playing this gorgeous piece. I could just feel it. I knew the piece, but it was one of those moments where music just infuses every pore of your soul and after they were done playing it I noticed people were chatting — talking with one another. I said afterwards, "folks this a great piece of music we've just heard. It can touch you, inspire you and take you to places you can never go on your own if only you listen."

Do you have any funny stories about your time working as a director or in a musical production?

Every now and then you have to interject humor and still do that hour during rehearsals. I was cast as the crucified Jesus during an Easter pageant at Beechmont Baptist Church. During one of the rehearsals they lifted me up onto the cross and it was going to a blackout and the lighting would mimic lightning and there was the sound of thunder for a storm. During the blackout, I reached behind me and pulled out an umbrella and opened it. When the lights came back on it looked as if I was trying to weather out the storm. The director was not pleased.

I would never dare do that during a performance. There's a time to work and get at it but after you work so hard and so long you need a little break and you need humor.

From the Workshop to the Manger will be at 6 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 15, at Franklinton Baptist Church.

In Jesus, there are no little people

Zacchaeus was a wee little man who climbed up in a sycamore tree to see Jesus (See Luke 19). Zacchaeus' story made me think of two of my school friends.

Seth was short — really short. Being short didn't seem to bother him in elementary school, but by the time we reached junior high, Seth was not happy about being short. Given the size of his parents, Seth wasn't likely to be anything but short; but, Seth didn't understand genetics; or if he did, it didn't change his attitude about being short. Seth started acting big — big, as in bigger than his breeches. He started running with the big boys and bragging about his exploits — real and imagined. By the time we reached the ninth grade, some of us were always rescuing him and trying to sober him up. It didn't work. The last time I saw Seth, he was still a little man trying to be a big man.

Horace was tall, well built, and muscular beyond his years. We were in the ninth grade before I remember meeting Horace. When he arrived at our school, our football coach couldn't wait to get him on the team. He was just what our line needed. In spite of Horace's stature and muscular build, he was a little guy—at least in his own eyes. Like Seth, Horace kept trying to prove he was bigger than he was.

Although I didn't fully agree with Seth's reaction to being short,

I sort of understand it. But why would anyone the size and build of Horace need to try to be bigger than he was? As a high school student, I couldn't fully explain the actions of either of my friends. I was baffled... perhaps as baffled as I suspect Horace and Seth often were, both by their actions and the consequences that followed. I think I know the answer now. Shortness and littleness is not merely about height and build. It's a mental and emotional thing, and a spiritual thing.

Zacchaeus was a wee little man. I'll take Luke's word that Zacchaeus climbed the sycamore tree because it was the only way he was assured of seeing Jesus. But Zacchaeus was little in other ways. He had taken a job that guaranteed he would be alienated from many of his own people. He was a tax collector for the Roman government. His fellow Jews saw him and his ilk as traitors. In spite of being despised by others, he was successful at his job. Yet success, like beauty, is often just skin deep. Zacchaeus didn't need to look into the eyes of others to see how little he was. He needed only to look inside his own mind and heart.

Who knows why Zacchaeus wanted to see Jesus! Maybe it was just curiosity. Maybe he had heard what Jesus had done for others and hoped it might be so for him. What we do know is what happened. Jesus saw him perched in the tree and bade him come down. What happened next would make anyone a bigger person. Jesus invited himself to Zacchaeus' home.

On that day, Zacchaeus became a big man, and he learned that where Jesus abides, there are no little people.

LOCAL STUDENTS OF THE WEEK

Eastern Elementary Chayton Aldridge

Chayton Aldridge is a fifth grader at Eastern Elementary.

What is your favorite subject?

Math. I've always been good with numbers. If I get multiplication on my homework, I break it up and make it into addition problems.

Are you excited about going to middle school next year?

Oh yeah. I'll have all kinds of new and different teachers. My sister said her favorite teacher at middle school is Ms. McMahan.

Do you have any pets?

I have two German shepherds, Ace and Sable; a poodle named Manny; a Chihuahua and beagle mix named Pooter; Sigh that is a beagle mix; a cat named Marshmallow (it looks like a burnt marshmallow) and a Guinea pig named Rosey.

Do you like music?

I like the kind I play. I play the bongos and I beat things with pencils. I also like country music. I like Blake Shelton.

What do you want to be when you grow up?

A hunter and maybe a business owner. I've already sold bracelets and made some money.

What do you do for fun?

I like to ride my bike over a ramp I have. I go about 3ft. in the air and sometimes I wreck. I go to the skate park in Oldham County. I have a Penny board, two other skateboards and a bike.

How would you describe yourself?

I'm always outdoors. I'm good with pets. I'm good on the skateboard and my scooter. I can pretty much talk to anybody unless they are strangers and my mom introduces them to me.

Campbellsburg Elementary Emily Callis

Emily Callis is a fifth grader at Campbellsburg Elementary.

What is your favorite subject?

Reading because it is fun. When you read, you get to explore and it takes you to a different world.

What kind of books do you like?

Survival in The Storm: The Dust Bowl Diary of Grace. It's historical and exciting because it's about the big dust storm.

Are you ready for middle school?

Kind of and not. It's going to be hard going from class to class on time. I'm looking forward to joining different clubs and band.

What do you do for fun?

I like to draw animals and write stories that go along with the pictures.

What kind of music do you like?

Hip-hop. I like Macklemore.

What do you want to be when you grow up?

I want to be a pharmacist and work at Bluegrass Drug Center like my mom. I like to help people and they do a lot of home visits.

How would you describe yourself?

Nice, funny. I make my best friends laugh. I act silly...make faces and stuff like that.

What do you like best about your school?

It's not too big and the teachers are nice. My teacher doesn't give me too much homework. We get to go on the computer and learn how to type.

Up the potential of an energy efficient HVAC

It's a common misconception that purchasing a new home heating or cooling unit will automatically lower your energy bills. However, this answer is not always so simple.

Purchasing a new energy efficient heating or cooling unit should lower your energy bills. However, you may want to ask yourself if your home is prepared to fully realize the potential cost savings of a new energy efficient unit.

Air conditioning and heating units are a part of your heating, ventilation and air conditioning system. An HVAC unit is a small system working within the larger system of your home. The full potential energy and cost savings of a new, energy efficient heating or cooling unit is only possible when the HVAC system is working with the home's system.

To make sure these systems are working together, purchase the correct size central air or heating unit for your home's square footage. Heating units that are too large for homes will not cycle properly and that will result in wasted energy. These units may also have a shorter life. Oversized air conditioners are susceptible to short cycling, inadequately dehumidification and large temperature variations within a home.

Heating units that are too small will not provide enough heat to be comfortable during very cold weather, and air conditioners that are too small may not be able to adequately cool and dehumidify your home during warmer months.

Central air and heating is delivered via a duct system. The duct system needs to be properly sized, installed, sealed and insulated. If it's not, it will affect the amount of energy required to heat or cool your home. Properly sealed ductwork ensures that conditioned air is not lost during delivery. Ductwork located outside of the home's thermal boundary, or insulated boundary, should be insulated. Insulating the ductwork ensures that the conditioned air is not lost through conduction to unconditioned spaces.

Your home's thermal boundary plays an important role in the effectiveness of your home's HVAC equipment. Air leaks within the thermal boundary will cause the loss of conditioned air and will cost you the full energy savings potential of the new unit. Sealing these leaks will correct the problem.

Remember when sealing your home's thermal boundary, that it can affect a home's ventilation system. Make sure you have adequate ventilation to have proper indoor air quality.

It's time to ham it up

It is time to sign up for the Country Ham Project. This project begins when the raw or green hams arrive at the Henry County Cooperative Extension Service office, usually on a Saturday in the middle of January.

When the hams arrive there are stations set up where youth and adults prepare the hams with a mixture of salt, seasonings and brown sugar. They are then wrapped and hung in the ham house until spring. Around spring break the 4-H member's hams are cleaned and then rehung to go through the summer sweat.

The week before the Kentucky State Fair, 4-H'ers clean the hams and polish them so that they are ready to be entered into the state competition. On the first Thursday of the fair 4-H'ers from across the state will gather to give a speech on a given topic. Youth only compete against other 4-H'ers that are born in the same year and there are only three people in the room that the speeches are given. While speeches are being presented, the hams are also being judged. Last year there were over 650 participants. At the end of the day everyone comes together for the awards ceremony.

All 4-H youth must prepare two hams at the cost of $55, according to the guidelines of the project. If you are an adult and would like to join us you are welcome to do so.

This year we are offering adults to cure one ham at the cost of $30.00. The price for two hams remains the same at $55. This was a very popular project last year, so if you are interested please do not delay in signing up. The contracts for the 4-H Country Ham Project are now available at the following website www.henrycounty4h.com.

All contracts and checks are due to the office by Dec. 6th. If you have any questions please call the office at 845-2811.

RCRA HAZARDOUS WASTE MANAGEMENT
PERMIT
EPA ID # KYD-053-348-108, AI # 1854

On May 1, 2009, Safety-Kleen Systems, Inc. submitted to the Kentucky Division of Waste Management a Part A and Part B Permit Application to renew the Hazardous Waste Treatment and Storage Permit (RCRA Part B Permit) for the facility located at 3700 La Grange Road, Smithfield, Henry County, Kentucky 40068. This facility is primarily a fuel blender of hazardous waste and non-hazardous waste that have high-BTU materials with little or no solvent recovery value. Liquid and solid wastes, received at the facility in containers and tanker trailers, are processed to separate the liquid and solid materials. The liquid material is placed in tanks for fuel blending and storage. The solid material is accumulated in dump trailers. The resulting mixtures of materials are shipped offsite in tanker/dump trailers as waste derived fuels to cement kilns to be burned for energy recovery.
In an effort to provide an opportunity for the public or any other agency to evaluate the Permit Application, Safety-Kleen has made it available at the addresses below:

EIS REQUESTS PUBLIC INPUT:
21ST CENTURY
COMMUNITY LEARNING CENTER GRANT

Eminence Independent Schools is applying for a 21st Century Community Learning Center Grant through the Kentucky Department of Education.
The grant helps the district fund after-school programming at the Warrior Activity Center. These programs are open to all youth in the community (preschool, homeschool, out of district) and are not restricted to Eminence students.
The district is seeking input from the community regarding the programs and services the public would like to have provided by the Warrior Activity Center.
Please send any suggestions to EIS21c@eminence.kyschools.us prior to November 22.

EMINENCE INDEPENDENT DISTRICT COUNTY TAXPAYER'S NOTICE

The 2013 Henry County tax bills for Eminence Independent Common School are now due and payable. If you do not receive your bill in the next few days, please contact the Henry County Sheriff's Office. When mailing your payment, please include the payment stub of the tax bill or put the tax bill number on your check. If you wish a paid receipt returned to you, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The following are the collection dates:

2% Discount: 11/15/13-12/15/13
Face Amount: 12/16/13-01/15/14
5% Penalty: 01/16/14-02/15/14
10% Penalty + 10% Sheriff's Add-On Fee: 02/16/14-04/30/14

IMPORTANT NOTICE

All Eminence Independent Common School delinquent tax bills will be transferred to the County Clerk's Office as of the close of business on April 30, 2014. This date has been changed because of the tax collection schedule being delayed to cause the face amount of the tax bill to be due after December 31, 2013. In addition to the penalties and fees that are applied by the Sheriff's Office, all payments made in the County Clerk's Office are subject to a 20% County Attorney's Fee, a 10% County Clerk's Fee and interest at 1% per month. The delinquency is also subject to being sold to a Third Party in the summer of 2014. All other delinquent county tax bills will be turned over to the County Clerk on the regular schedule of April 15, 2014. This delayed billing in no way affects the previous schedule for all other county tax bills.

Auditor's Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on the financial statement based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Governmental Auditing Standards issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and the Audit Guide for County Fee Officials issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statement is free from material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statement. The procedures selected depend on the auditor's judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statement, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity's preparation and fair presentation of the financial statement in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's internal control. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statement. We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinions.

Basis for Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles

As described in Note 1 of the financial statement, the financial statement is prepared by the County Sheriff on the basis of the accounting practices prescribed or permitted by the laws of Kentucky to demonstrate compliance with the Commonwealth of Kentucky's regulatory basis of accounting, which is a basis of accounting other than accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

The effects on the financial statement of the variances between the regulatory basis of accounting described in Note 1 and accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, although not reasonably determinable, are presumed to be material.

Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles

In our opinion, because of the significance of the matter discussed in the Basis for Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles paragraph, the financial statement referred to above does not present fairly, in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, the financial position of each fund of the County Sheriff, as of December 31, 2012, or changes in financial position or cash flows thereof for the year then ended.

Opinion on Regulatory Basis of Accounting

In our opinion, the financial statement referred to above presents fairly, in all material respects, the revenues, expenditures, and excess fees of the County Sheriff for the year ended December 31, 2012, in accordance with the basis of accounting practices prescribed or permitted by the Commonwealth of Kentucky as described in Note 1.

Other Reporting Required by Government Auditing Standards

In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated July 10, 2013 on our consideration of the Henry County Sheriff's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts and grant agreements, and other matters. The purpose of that report is solely to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on the effectiveness of the Henry County Sheriff's internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. This report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards in considering the entity's internal control over financial reporting and compliance.

Based on the results of our audit, we have presented the accompanying comment and recommendation, included herein, which discusses the following report comment:

2012-01 The Sheriff Should Ensure Expenditures Are Made For Reasonable And Necessary Purposes For The Function Of The Office

Respectfully submitted,

Adam H. Edelen

next year he will not be as nervous going into the race.”
Jay Solinger of Collins, who also won the regional meet at Champions Park, won the state title with a time of 16:24. Ethan Shuley of Highlands, who led for the first half of the race, finished second in a time of 16:33.

North Oldham won the team title with a score of 53 points while Covington Catholic finished second with 69 points.
In the girls’ 2A race Gabriella Karas of Collins made it a double for the school by winning in a time of 17:39. Her time was the best of the day by any girl in any class by a whopping 30 seconds.

Highlands won the girls’ team title with 76 points while Christian Academy from Henry County’s region finished runner-up with 152 points and North Oldham finished third with 176 points. Collins finished fifth, proving once again that Region 3 is the toughest region in Class 2A.

But after the half, it was all Redhounds. The Cats couldn't move the chains on their first possession and Corbin took over on their own 42-yard line. They moved down field to score with 4:37 left in the third period. The extra point tied the game at 10-10. On the Cats' next possession they fumbled the ball away on second down on their own 44, giving the Redhounds good field position. On the next play, the Redhounds ran 24 yards. After three plays netted nine yards, the Redhounds went for it on 4th and 1 from the 11-yard line. A two-yard run made it first and goal and the Redhounds punched in the go-ahead touchdown from five yards out with two seconds left in the quarter. Corbin added another touchdown on a short run with 6:34 to go before the Cats made one last attempt to turn the game around. Tuggle returned the ensuing kickoff to the Cats' 40-yard line. Peniston completed a 17-yard pass to Gavin Black and a Redhound roughing the passer penalty moved the ball to the Corbin 28-yard line. Peniston was sacked on the next play to make it second and 18. Corbin stopped Hartsell on the next play but was flagged for a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty, moving the ball to the 23-yard line. Peniston lofted the ball into the end zone for Johnson, but Corbin picked off the pass, ending the threat and the Cats' hope of advancing to the second round. The Cats end the season with a 6-5 record while Corbin improves to 9-2. "It's like getting punched in the face," coach Jason Spencer said. "The kids came out and gave their all and played a great first half. But an injury here and an injury there throughout the second half and Corbin made plays. "The thing that I can say is that these kids came out and gave it their all. "I really love my kids. I do more than anything. We had every single kid give it their all on both sides of the ball. That's all I can ever ask of them. Even though they lost I can say that I am proud of the heart that they showed out here on this field tonight."

Austin Hartsell struggles for extra yardage against Corbin.

"We have to accept our part in this, but if you look at the first round scores in Class A there was not one single close game," Frommeyer said. "They were all one-sided. The Class A discrepancy is still the biggest in Kentucky high school football. "This game was symptomatic of the season. Lost playing time, mostly because of injuries, made it impossible to play at the level that top Class A teams play at." But Frommeyer saw the positives in one of the most trying seasons of his career. "Despite the worst injury situation of my career we still finished the regular season with a 6-4 record and I'm proud of the kids for that. "Shelby Armstrong will share the credit with his teammates for being a 1,000 yard rusher. But it was not just running the football with Shelby, he grew into a good team leader. "Several of the seniors missed a lot of playing time to injuries but they continued to stick with it and they came to practice even when they were out and encouraged the younger players. "The one positive from the injury situation was that a lot of younger players got a lot of playing time because they had to fill in and that will help us moving forward to next year. The young kids did a great job."

The other impression I was left with is that Purdue must be pretty weak this year if Northern nearly beat them. No disrespect to the Norse but they looked like what they are... a Division II school transitioning to Division I. This column had to be finished before the Cats took on Michigan State last night so we might have awakened this morning with a little perspective on just where this Wildcat team might be but I hope that is not the case. After last year's disappointing season, we need this team to get us back where we belong — at the top of the pecking order. The Cardinals were also impressive in their victory over a pretty tough College of Charleston team on Saturday. When you consider that the team is playing without last year's starting point guard, center, power forward and two invaluable subs in Kevin Ware and Luke Hancock, both of whom would have been penciled in as starters this year, it was a pretty impressive victory even if the final score was a little deceptive. The Cards did what they always do. Struggle along on offense while playing relentless defense until the other team cracks and then... bam they go in for the kill. When Hancock, Ware and Chane Behanan return, this could be another top-notch team for Pitino. Another run to the Final Four could be in the Cards.

Changing the focus

With the end of the fall sports season I was able to focus on college sports a little this weekend.

After traveling to the Kentucky Horse Park for the State cross country meet on Saturday I headed to Commonwealth Stadium where I ‘enjoyed’ watching the Kentucky Wildcats play the Missouri Tigers with another old retiree, Terry Petree.

You have to see them in person to understand just how far the Cats have to go before they can become a middle-of-the-pack SEC team again.

I know a lot of people expect coach Mark Stoops to work miracles and make the team a legitimate contender, but after watching them play a good Missouri team Saturday, my expectations are about what they always have been.

With a good coach and better players, the Cats can expect to pull off the occasional upset and make it to the Liberty Bowl... sometime in the hopefully not-to-distant future.

Let’s face it. If Stoops can pull that off in the next three or four years, he will head for greener pastures where he can actually have a realistic hope of competing for a national championship.

What coach would work his butt off just to get to 7-5 every season and hope for a victory in the Music City Bowl if he could move to a school that would allow him to have a chance at something better?

The problem is that even with great recruiting the Cats will never be able to land enough great talent to compete with the Alabamas of the world.

As the game got out of hand on Saturday, Terry and I were actually talking about whether the Cats would have a chance against the Crimson Tide’s second or even third team.

I hate to sound pessimistic, but watching them in person showed that it was a game of men versus boys, and the Cats should be proud of getting into the end zone twice against the Tigers. When you see first-hand the difference in the size and skill of each team’s linemen, you have to wonder how it was possible.

As for the other football team in the state — it is hard to get excited watching them mechanically drilling a much inferior Connecticut team that has fallen off dramatically in the last couple of seasons.

After the Central Florida debacle the remainder of the season seems kind of anti-climatic. It’s just hard to get into the Cards’ games when you know that you can’t even argue the merits of giving them a title shot. Even if they run the table the rest of the way, 11-1 against their schedule won’t get them to the promised land.

It’s weird that arguably the best team in school history leaves us wanting more even as they mow down their hapless opponents.

On a brighter note, the college basketball season looks very promising for both the Cats and the Cards.

Although a No. 1 ranking is a bit premature for such a young team, I think the Cats have the size and athleticism to go a long way this year. They also seem to have the hunger that was missing from last year’s team.

I know that Northern Kentucky was in way over their heads but it was nice seeing the Wildcats’ players diving on the floor for loose balls in the middle of a blowout win.

Julius Randle is a beast and I was impressed with the agility and smoothness that he plays with. He is going to be a very special player.

The Harrison twins also impressed me. They are mature beyond their years and know how to contribute without a lot of flashiness. They may not create as many oohs and ahs as John Wall, but they will be quietly efficient players that help Kentucky get back to the top of the pack.

Warriors fall in first round

A season marred by injuries is over for the Eminence Warriors, who fell to Bellevue 64-6 in the first round of the Kentucky High School Class A playoffs.

Bellevue scored early and often in racking up 36 first-quarter points to put the game away early.

The Warriors got on the scoreboard in the second quarter when DeMarcus Bailey ran it in from one yard out for the team’s only touchdown.

A 45-yard pass from Jalen Dixie to Shelby Armstrong set up the touchdown run.

With most of the game being played with a running clock the Tigers added 16 second quarter points and 6 more in each of the final two periods to set the final 58-point margin of victory.

The Warriors’ season ended at 6-5, while Bellevue improved to 7-4 as they move on to play Frankfort in the second round.

Despite home-field advantage and giving their all, Henry County fell to Corbin, 24-10, in the first round of the Kentucky High School Class 3A playoffs.

The Wildcats started strong and held a 10-3 advantage at halftime but could not keep the offense moving in the second half as Corbin rallied for the right to advance to the second round to play district rival Wayne County.

The Wildcats got on the scoreboard first on a 25-yard field goal by Jacob Buckley with 5:44 to go in the first period. The Cats stopped Corbin cold on their first series and then drove from the Corbin 49-yard line to the 10-yard line before the drive stalled out.

Mason Fish had strong runs of 18 and 13 yards during the drive. After Fish’s 18-yard run, the Cats were called for a 15-yard penalty. After his 13-yard run the Cats were called for an illegal procedure penalty that made it 1st and 15. The two penalties hurt the Cats’ chances of getting to the end zone and forced them to settle for Buckley’s field goal.

On the ensuing kickoff, Buckley kicked it deep and the coverage was strong as the Cats pinned Corbin at their own 15-yard line.

Corbin managed a couple of first downs before the drive stalled out, and the Cats got a big break when the punter fumbled the snap and had to fall on the ball at the Cats’ 20-yard line.

The Cats got five yards on first down on an Austin Hartsell run. Fish then picked up five yards on two inside runs to get the first down at the 10-yard line.

Fish then fought his way for seven tough yards to make it second and goal from the three-yard line. Fish injured his ribs on the play and was out for the rest of the game.

The first quarter ended after Hartsell ran twice to get to the one-yard line and leave the Cats at fourth and goal.

Another illegal procedure penalty coming after the break made it fourth and 6, and the Cats called timeout to set up the play as they decided to go for it instead of settling for the field goal.

Corbin anticipated the play and Hartsell was tackled for a 4-yard loss to end the threat.

Corbin then drove quickly downfield with several long runs to reach the Henry County 8-yard line. Henry County called its second timeout of the half to stop the Redhounds’ momentum and the play was successful. The next three plays netted no gain, and Corbin settled for a 23-yard field goal to tie the score at 3-3.

The Cats’ final possession of the half started from Henry’s 43-yard line with a five-yard keeper by quarterback Brennen Peniston. The Cats steadily moved the ball downfield, but a holding penalty negated a third-and-4, nine-yard run by Ethan Tuggle to make it third and 13. Cameron Johnson was caught for a one-yard loss to make it fourth and 14 and the Cats punted, hoping to pin the Redhounds deep in their own territory.

The Cats caught a huge break as Corbin was caught with 12 men on the field at the time of the punt, leading to a 15-yard penalty and a first down for the Cats from the Redhounds’ 35-yard line.

After short gains by Tuggle and Hartsell, Bodie Clark ripped off an 11-yard run to make it first and 10 from the 20-yard line with 20 seconds left in the half.

Clark then found a big hole in the middle of the Corbin line and took the ball in for the touchdown. Buckley’s extra point gave the Cats a seven-point lead going into halftime.

But after the half, it was all Redhounds.

The Cats couldn’t move the chains on their first possession and Corbin took over on their own 42-yard line. They moved down field to score with 4:37 left

HCHS CROSS COUNTRY

Logsdon competes in first state meet

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

Henry County High School sophomore Josh Logsdon competed in his first state cross country meet on Saturday at the Kentucky Horse Park and finished the Class 2A meet in the middle of the pack at 135th out of 215 runners. Logsdon’s time was 19:14 on the moderately difficult state meet 5k course.

Logsdon set a personal record by 30 seconds last week at the very easy regional course at Champions Park in Louisville. That course had no hills to speak of and fewer sharp turns than the Horse Park that has several long, gradual inclines. The Horse Park course is not known for yielding many personal bests.

With two years more to improve, coach Ricky Drawbaugh saw this as a good chance for Logsdon to gain experience.

“I thought Josh ran well Saturday,” Drawbaugh said. “We planned for him to run with DeSales’ top runner so he could try to PR. Josh went out and stayed with him for the first two miles and then started to fall back.

“This year we had to train to peak at regional to get to the state meet. Next year, if we are confident that Josh will make it to state, we can try and (set a personal record) at state. This year was also about experience for Josh so that
